♥ EMOTIONAL SUPPORT ANIMALS

What Is An Emotional Support Animal?

Emotional support animals help people suffering from stress, anxiety, PTSD, panic attacks and other psychological and emotional problems by providing comfort and support. They are protected by the Fair Housing Act and therefore regardless of size and breed, they can live in any housing, including “no pet policy” housing, and are exempt from pet deposits and pet rent. With an increasing number of landlords charging pet rent and pet deposits, an emotional support animal will not only alleviate your symptoms and improve your life, but will save you hundreds, possibly thousands, of dollars.

Do You Qualify For An Emotional Support Animal?

To find out if you qualify, schedule a risk-free phone consultation with a licensed mental health professional in your state by calling U.S. Service Animals at (985) 441-4023 or submitting the form here:
www.usserviceanimals.org/esa-letter.

Make your emotional support animal more visible by adding a vest, collar tag, collar, and/or leash to your order. This often reduces hassle from your landlord.
